High-level meetings on future of RACVIAC

During the last MAG Meeting, it was decided to establish a Working group (WG) in order to identify short and long term measures to strengthen RACVIAC’s status as a regionally owned institution and to explore the financial, organizational and staffing implications of RACVIAC’s broadened mandate. In that regard, Croatia, as the Chair of this WG, led by Assistant Minister Mr Pjer Šimunović, held two meetings (2nd February and 22nd/23rd March) in RACVIAC premises. High level participants from all MAG countries, countries with observer status and representatives of NATO and Stability Pact (SP) participated at the meetings. The MAG countries, including all the countries in the region, during these two meetings, agreed and are ready to reform RACVIAC. After a very fruitful discussion following conclusions were reached:

Upgrading present RACVIAC status is needed to reflect new realities: reform of SP, strengthening of Regional Cooperation Council (RCC), taking into consideration status of countries aspiring to become members of EU and NATO. Regional ownership with added interest from outside the region implies at least two, with the possibility of stretching to three groups of member countries: core group (SEECP members), associate members (countries taking interest in the region) and partners (involved as much as that involvement is desired, with possibility to become members). Membership aims to be voluntary with all SEE countries being eligible but not obliged to be members. In forming a forum for security dialogue RACVIAC should keep close connections through active dialogue with NATO and EU. There is a need to further explore and develop the framework of relation between RCC and RACVIAC. The main area of activities would be harmonized with priority activities of NATO PfP and EU European Security and Defence Policy. Anyhow, Arms Control, Security Sector Reform and Defence Conversion will remain part of RACVIAC’s activities. Strong relationships and close cooperation with EU and NATO is one of RACVIAC’s priorities. Formalising relationship with NATO, thus becoming a Regional PfP Centre. RACVIAC also has to explore the possibility of signing Memorandum of Understanding with EU. Establishing a Program Advisory Board (PAB) is one of the options in facilitating the work of RACVIAC primarily with the task to avoid any duplication, but also to promote RACVIAC and to lobby for its programmes and financial aspects. PAB would not have power to make decisions but would serve to provide suggestions and advice to MAG. Structure of PAB would be composed of representatives of EU and NATO and other relevant organisations and prominent individuals. Regarding the update of the name RACVIAC, the suggestion to the MAG would be to keep the name as a brand and just modify it by adding ‘Centre for Security Cooperation’.

On the issue of RACVIAC staffing, countries from the region would provide seconded personnel to RACVIAC as well as Director and the Deputy Director. The associate members from outside SEE may also nominate experts for secondment and will contribute to RACVIAC’s programme funding. Third countries and international organisations would have a possibility to provide experts for specific projects. As the last topic participants discussed RACVIAC financing. It was proposed to consider RCC financial WG proposal as relevant to RACVIAC. Core budget would represent a control package providing secure, stable and regular financial contributions and would thus become responsibility of member countries. The size of contribution should not entitle donors to decide on the programme without consensus. Associate members would have a possibility to fund certain projects.

These proposals will be presented for further elaboration and the approval at the next MAG Meeting on 18th April in Sofia, Bulgaria.
The Seminar on “Security Sector Reform: things done and things to do” has been held in RACVIAC on 23 – 24 January 2007. The aim of this seminar was to emphasize the importance of the SSR process in the light of the increasing power and responsibilities gained by the institutions involved in, giving a particular attention to progresses made by the regional countries on implementation of SSR.

Amb. PETRISCH gave a speech on the second day on the importance of international society in the field of SSR, as follows:

“Let me – at the outset – say, how much I appreciate the invitation by Major General Stergios PAPOTIS to address the SSR-Seminar here in Zagreb. I would like to thank him and his able team!

I hope to be able to give you some insight from a civilian’s vantage point as to how the “sub-systems” security apparatus on one hand and justice and home affairs on the other interact and how and in what way the international community “intervened”. My own practical experience has taught me, that sometimes the mere and simple exchange of information between established international and regional organizations on the one hand and the States on the other may already be of significant help to the many competent experts and policy makers of those states. RACVIAC is in this way a prime example. Talking as a civilian, I am, of course, referring to security system management as an issue of both “governance” and government. All the new states of the Western Balkans have significant structural similarities – challenges caused by the “delayed transition”. Consequently, post-conflict peace building is basically about the three components contained in the acronym DDR – Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration of the armed forces including paramilitary units and ad-hoc “special forces”. There, such specialized agencies as DCAF, also associated with RACVIAC, have played – and still do – a relevant role.

We need to acknowledge that the reform of the security system in SEE is no one-way-street; it is an exercise clearly in our common European interest. And I must add a self-evident but important caveat: each country’s and region’s historical, political and security situation is unique and we should not aspire to create “one fits all” templates for post-conflict societies. I will conclude by emphasizing three rather broad parameters against which, in my view, the success of any security sector reform needs to be measured: first, public or state responsibility, second, sustainability: how will a successful SSR help promote economic and social security, and development? And third: International peace building efforts must aim at sustainable solutions in order to free capacities and assets both of the United Nations system and regional organizations to tackle the manifold security challenges of an ever increasing number of weak and failing states – one of the main challenges of our time.

To conclude: I am convinced that a close and professional partnership between the armed forces of the region, their European and transatlantic partners, is an essential precondition for our common success.”

RACVIAC – a member of PfP Consortium of Defense Academies and Security Study Institutes

Cooperating closely with Defense Universities and Security Study Institutes participating in the PfP Consortium of Defense Academies and Security Study Institutes (PfP-C) will bolster RACVIAC’s ambitions to be shaping up well as a “Regional Security Policy Center” or a “Security Study Institute”.

On 02 MAR, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas MERGEL (German Army), Chief Planning & Liaison Officer, Western European Countries & International Organizations, discussed with Mr. Bigo, Manager of Operations Staff, PfP-C, the value of RACVIAC becoming a PfP-C participating organization as a member or an affiliate (e.g. the Croatian Institute for International Relations - IMO - is a PfP-C participating organization).

Mr. Bigo was very supportive to the idea RACVIAC seeks to cooperate with the PfP-C Study Group on Regional Stability in South-East Europe (RSSEE-SG) and the Working Group on Security Sector Reform (SSR-WG). Furthermore, Mr. Bigo pointed to the next PfP-C Annual Conference (13-14 June, Zagreb) and suggested participation. Thus all necessary actions will be taken to cooperate closely with both the RSSEE-SG and the SSR-WG. Since a few weeks RACVIAC has been successfully registered as a PfP-C participating organization. It goes without saying RACVIAC will not only participate in the above-mentioned PfP-C Annual Conference but also offered to support the event with at least a presentation by the Director or a senior representative.

Seminar “Cooperation against Terrorism”

the field of SALW in SEE in the last decade.”

Presentation 5: “Terrorism and Media - Internet.”

Presentation 6: “The importance of cooperation among related actors (countries/ security providing actors) to fight against terrorism.”

“NATO point of view in the field of international cooperation.

Seminar was concluded by producing the recommendation paper on “How can we harmonize efforts of regional countries for a better regional approach to fight against terrorism?” as follows:

The enemy is terrorism: premeditated politically motivated violence, perpetrated against non-combatant targets by sub-national groups or clandestine agents.

Terrorism recognizes no language, religion, nationality, region and ideology and it is an international phenomenon threatening the whole world.

Countries should not stay neutral in the field of fighting against terrorism, and should act with zero-tolerance attitude against all kinds of terrorism.

International measures, anti-terrorism conventions, protocols and resolutions adopted by the UN (particularly Resolution No. 1373) should be ratified and/or implemented by all the countries.

More efficient cooperation in the fight against terrorism is possible with the UN, other organizations and initiatives should support the UN in any sense.

In the context of collective security, countries should be ready to give support to the international level to common fight against terrorism.

In order to make a progress in the fight against terrorism in the long-term, the underlying reasons of terrorism should be determined and addressed in advance.

The most efficient way to defeat terrorism is a multinational and multilateral approach. Although military power is a significant and supportive tool in the fight against terrorism, some other tools such as intelligence, public diplomacy and cooperation with allies will become much more effective.

Each country should establish and maintain an efficient penal system in the fight against all kinds of terrorism taking into consideration UN resolutions.

RACVIAC&OPCW joint course on Chemical Weapons Convention

According to the RACVIAC programme 2007 the Training & Verification Division organized and executed the Seminar C-02 from 05 to 09 February 2007. The purpose of this seminar was to present to the participants the equipment that is used by OPCW inspectors and to focus on technical matters and practical training. The Seminar was organized together with Organization for Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) for the fourth time and it was a follow up of the last Seminar on CWC, which was held in RACVIAC in 2006. It was carried out in English language, consisting of presentations and practical training.

Course Objectives were:

- To provide the participants with information about the Chemical weapons agents and their effects.
- To provide the participants with information about the protective equipment and the detection devices, which are used by OPCW, and their use.
- To present the basic function of a Contamination Control Station (CCS).
- To give to the participants the opportunity for practical training to all the above-mentioned items.

Seventeen participants attended the Course from Albania (2), Bosnia and Herzegovina (1), Bulgaria (1), Croatia (4), Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia* (2), Germany (1), Hungary (1), Moldova (1), Montenegro (1), Serbia (2) and Slovenia (1).

The seminar was conducted with the assistance of three lecturers from OPCW: Mr. Henry Arvidsson, Mr. Jaromir Jiricek and Mr. Dennis Griffin.

RACVIAC, in cooperation with OPCW, conducted the Seminar for CWC for the first time with a practical phase included in the program. Mr. Muhammad A Kazi, from OPCW, started the 1st day with the opening remarks and a short overview of provisions of article X. Mr. Arvidsson presented the Chemical Weapons Agents types and effects, as well as the Personal Protective Equipment (PPE). Finally, Mr. Jiricek presented the Hazard Prediction Software and the Contamination Control Station.

During the 2nd day Mr. Griffin presented the Detection Equipment and explained its use. Participants had practical training on the use of PPE.

During the 3rd day the participants, divided to 2 sub teams, had practical training in Detection & Reconnaissance and Decontamination (personal, equipment and casualty) procedures.

The 4th day included a scenario-based exercise with practical response to different scenarios: team preparation, planning, equipment preparation, reconnaissance, evacuation, decontamination, transportation of casualties and first aid to casualties. The participants, divided in 2 sub teams, conducted this exercise in an open area, into the Barracks.

The Course was proved to be successful. Several participants were NBC officers or members of the verification centres in their countries.

Issues to be highlighted:

- The cooperation between RACVIAC and OPCW ensured the presence of high-level instructors. Their professionalism and experience were highly appreciated by the participants.

RACVIAC Defense Conversion Cell introduces new activities

RACVIAC Defense Conversion Cell has entered the new program year with two new activities named "Military Personnel Transition Program/System Survey" and "Defense Conversion Press Clipping". By doing this, we have been trying to enrich the scope of RACVIAC defense conversion support to our member countries, not just being limited to regular program events, but improving our research and information exchange capacities, introducing new tools and concepts.

Military personnel transition program/system survey

"Military Personnel Transition Program/System Development Survey Form" was developed by WG1 staff in a very short time, and distributed on 11th December 2006. Its primary function is establishment of applicable knowledge base, and thus more systematic and effective expert support to development or improvement of individual national development or improvement of individual national military personnel transition programs and/or systems (also known as retraining and resettlement programs). As a multifunctional data-collecting toll, it provides us with highly specific information required for identification of the best practice, or possible shortfalls in probably the most sophisticated field of defense conversion. In the same time, individual member countries are in a position to independently review their own military personnel transition program/system establishment, and submit up to date assistance requirement toward RACVIAC. We truly believe that this activity starts more transparent process of experience exchange on regional level, leading toward the joint ownership over the standard model of separated military personnel transition system, already outlined by the survey questions. Applied concept is not limited just to omnipresent approach of temporary support to redundant military personnel, but includes the latest context of defense reforms in the region, primarily all-volunteer force establishment, offering possible directions for future developments. Survey form has been published on our web site in PDF format and is thus available publicly.

Defense Conversion Press Clipping

This activity has been initiated in January 2007, as a media scan of specific subjects considering "Defense Reform and Defense Conversion in South East Europe". Its purpose is to timely provide our WG members and observers with information being presented in regional media. Our media scan activity includes written media in following countries: Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Montenegro and Serbia. Future press clipping activities (if decided) could include Albania, Bulgaria, Moldova and Romania. Press clipping delivery is done weekly, and all articles are delivered chronologically with corresponding Meta data, including summaries in native language, and in large part with scanned images of original articles. Additionally, RACVIAC PR Cell has developed internal capacities for translation of selected article summaries to English language. We are providing this service for over 40 users included in DCC joint efforts. To this moment we have distributed over 200 articles and produced over 70 translations.

We consider this service as significant contribution to our information exchange capacity and media visibility of our field of interest. In this way, our member countries are in better position to assess their media presence, receive relevant feedback considering their local efforts, to identify possible sources of misinformation, and to improve their information activities (public relations).
